Stock your at-home workspace with fun, frugal office extras that still get down to business

LAUGH A MINUTE
You're a one-woman show, so have fun with it—this graphic clock from Kikkerland ($10) plays on the classic storefront signage that says, "I set the hours here"

STRIKE OUT
Mistake-prone when you're burning the midnight oil? These matchstick-shaped erasers ($4.50 for a box of 10) from Décor Craft Inc. make light work of necessary error eradications

GET PERSONAL
Write off bland supplies and make your mark with these day-brightening office mates: a geek-chic graph paper-print mug ($13) from Fishs Eddy, and Lillian Vernon's cheerful, customizable pencils ($5 for 12)

ON A ROLL
Even if your square footage is as tight as your budget, there's still room for West Elm's compact desk ($298): The rollout extension doubles the work surface, and a cubby-rich hutch has tons of nifty storage

BLUE-LIGHT SPECIAL
It's easy to look on the bright side with PBteen's metal task lamp ($69). Available in six cheerful colors (including ice blue, above, and pink), it gives you three pivot points for optimal desktop illumination

STICKING POINT
Turn any spot into a mini bulletin board with these red metal arrows and dot magnets ($8 for four of each) from CB2. Just remove the arrow's peel-and-stick backing, position as you like, and you've got the hang of it
